

NAUNAS · CLIENT LIFECYCLE INFRASTRUCTURE

The 6 Places Service Businesses Leak Revenue

And how much it's actually costing you — a field guide for businesses that don't have a leads problem, they have a leak.

A free breakdown by Naufal — I install the systems that turn chaotic lead flow into controlled revenue.

START HERE

You don't have a leads problem.

Most service businesses I look at are sitting on more revenue than they think — it's just leaking out between the moments anyone's paying attention. Here's where. Count how many apply to you.

1 The 48-hour window

A lead goes cold in about 48 hours — not because they chose someone else, but because life moved on and the moment passed.

YOU HAVE THIS IF

enquiries sit in your inbox until you "get a minute."

THE FIX

the first response can't depend on a human — instant acknowledgement + the next step, automated.

2 The follow-up cliff

Most sales need 5+ touches. Most businesses stop after 1–2. Everything in between is revenue you already paid to attract, walking away quietly.

YOU HAVE THIS IF

you follow up once, hear nothing, and the lead just fades.

THE FIX

follow-up runs on a sequence, not on memory — written once, sent automatically, sounding like you.

3 The proposal black hole

You scoped the work, sent the proposal, and it's been "with them" for two weeks. Proposals don't get rejected — they get forgotten.

YOU HAVE THIS IF

you can't say right now how many proposals are sitting unanswered, and how old each is.

THE FIX

every proposal gets a follow-up date the moment it's sent, and something nudges you when it passes.

4

The no-show drain

Booked calls that don't happen and never get rebooked. The lead wasn't lost — they were just never re-invited.

YOU HAVE THIS IF

a missed call means the thread just ends.

THE FIX

reminders before the call, an automatic "want to rebook?" after a miss. Boring, automated, quietly recovers your calendar.

5

The forgotten goldmine

Past clients and old leads — people who already trusted you once — sitting in a spreadsheet nobody opens. The cheapest revenue you'll ever earn is in there.

YOU HAVE THIS IF

you've never run a reactivation message in your life.

REAL EXAMPLE

I helped a client make an extra $10k without a single new lead — we just fixed what happened to the people already on their list.

6

The invisible drop-off

You can't fix what you can't see. If you don't know where leads die — after enquiry? after the call? after the price? — you're guessing, and you'll fix the wrong thing.

YOU HAVE THIS IF

you can't sketch your lead-to-cash journey with rough numbers at each step.

THE FIX

one place where every lead's stage is tracked automatically — so the leak shows itself.

SCORE YOURSELF

0–1: you're tighter than most — protect it.

2–3: you're leaking real money monthly; the fixes are mostly boring automation.

4+: your follow-up system is the bottleneck — not your leads, not your service.

Want to know exactly where yours are?

I do a free audit of your lead-to-cash journey: where it leaks, what it's costing, and the exact system that plugs it. A map, not a pitch — it's free because some businesses then ask me to build the fix, and that conversation's easier when you've seen the map.

Get your free audit →

Naufal — I install client lifecycle infrastructure that turns chaotic lead flow into controlled revenue.